A round worth sharing

Page 1: usage guide. Print page 2 on its own as a live-stream cue card.

Make your own invitation first

Have one host answer 30 questions off camera and save the private management file. Questions and answers then freeze. Give viewers the public invitation only. Each quiz lasts 90 days and holds up to 1,000 entries.

Record real reactions

Ask featured players before filming, use made-up names and show only agreed results. Official Demo players are not testimonials. Creator previews do not enter the board. Use the three supplied clip structures for your own reactions.

Make the destination usable

For Stories, upload the image and add a Link sticker with the public invite. Shorts description/comment URLs are not clickable; use a channel profile link. TikTok website access depends on account eligibility and location. Test the published destination on a phone.

Use and credit

You may record and edit your own FermatMind play, including monetized videos, with featured players' permission. Keep FermatMind and a public invite or tool link visible. Retain demo labels; this does not license a standalone copy of the question bank or imply sponsorship.

Play the demonstration quiz

Demonstration names, not testimonials. Expires 24 Jan 2027 at 13:19 UTC; it can close or fill earlier. Create a separate invitation for your event.

Live cue card - one host, many guesses

Browser play. 30 questions. Immediate feedback. Equal scores tie. Keep all management access off camera.

BEFORE LIVE

Create your own 30-question invitation off camera, save management access and test the public link in another browser. Agree on the host, filming permission, nicknames and wrap-up.

OPEN - SAY THIS

“Guess what I would choose, not your own preference. This score counts matches in one round, not the value of a friendship.” Show the public invite QR and let people answer independently.

WHILE PEOPLE PLAY

Keep answers and full comparisons off stream. Each player sees immediate feedback; broadcasting it gives later viewers clues. There is no synchronized timer or delayed-reveal mode.

REVEAL & BOARD

After the group finishes, show agreed results. Ties share a rank; the first completed record is kept per browser, and another device cannot be reliably identified. Do not mix different question sets.

TALK - THREE SURPRISES

“Is this a recent change, or something I had not noticed?” Leave uncomfortable topics out. A miss or low score does not prove someone does not care.

RECREATE & CLOSE

“Play my invitation, or make a quiz about you for your friends to guess.” Decide whether to close after the recap; closing also blocks result access. Moderate inappropriate names off camera.
